Few persons would venture to make any prediction as to the bank statemen to-morrow. In view of the rather umcertain local movements of money vanted the Court to hear his views. It was generally believed that the Although his request was opposed the bank statement will reflect the feeling of the big interests toward the market Mr. Lindabury in his argument referred to the organization of the Northern Securities Company and to its being subsequently deciared by the United States Supreme Court an illegal corporation. He referred to portions of Justice Harlan's opinion which branded the combination as a conspiracy against interstate commerce and to other portions of the opinion which decreed that the corporation must be dissolved and the stocks returned.

Mr. Lindabury then told how his clients came to be connected with the combination which was organized by J. P. Morgan, James J. Hill, Daniel Lamont and others. Last week the low in cash was greater effect on prices unless it forces the bankers to raise the rates for loans. The Oregon Short Line, he said, had acquired $78,000,000 of the $155,000,000 of stock of the Northern Pacific, or a majority of the whole. But of this stock only $37,000,000 was common, the full issue of common being $80,000,000. Under the charter of the Northern Pacific, it was learned, the common stock had the light treative to the common stock had the

The strongest group the strong of the st was learned, the common stock had the right to retire the preferred stock at any time.

Messis. Morgan and Hill, having acquired $42,000,000 of the common stock in the mean time, notified Mr. Harriman and the Oregon Short Line Company that they proposed to retire the preferred stock and issue common in its place, but that no holder of preferred stock would be allowed to subscribe for the new issue of common stock. At the same time Morgan and Hill aunounced that they were about to organize the Northern Securities Company and that Harriman and the Oregon Short Line people could put their stock of the Northern Pacific into the new corporation on the same basis as Morgan and Hill were putting theirs.

Mr. Lindabury said that that was how his clients were forced into the combination. He declared that they had nothing to do with the organization of it, as had been proved before the United States Supreme Court, and they claimed that now they have a right to their stock as deposited. This advance caused a general rise in the whole market. Some issues were a point higher. The strongest group was Atchison, Union Pacific, St. Paul and saltimore and Onto, which ail made substantial advances. General Electric opened 3-4 lower and then rallied a norm. Consolidated das was slightly lower and United States Reality was active and strong Canadian Pacific showed some strength. Rock island was stronger and in better demand than for some strength. Northern Securities was slightly weaker on the duro. The volume of trading was muon less than yesterday but the general tone was much better, and the feeling is that the end of the down swing has come and that next week will see advancing prices. The closing to-day was strong, but trading was duil.
